“And let us consider how to provoke one another to love and good deeds….” (Hebrews 10:24)

In MCC’s work in the U.S. and across the globe, we see our partners, workers, churches and supporters living out this call to love and to serve.

Their dedication is helping new growth take root in places like Nepal, where Thuli Maya Chepang (left) and other farmers are experimenting with techniques to help cauliflower and other vegetables thrive on steep, rocky hillsides where they have land to plant.

It’s bringing hope and healing to those who have survived trauma in places like Nigeria, and supporting work for peace in locations from Vietnam to Colombia.

MCC’s Syria and Iraq crisis response now totals more than $35 million in six years. MCC is carrying out a $3-million response to earthquakes in Nepal and is responding to other urgent needs, including providing canned meat to South Sudanese refugees in Ethiopia.

As MCC reaches out to uprooted people around the world, MCC U.S. and regional offices – through immigration law trainings, legal work, advocacy efforts and learning tours – support immigrants and inspire people of faith to learn more about immigration issues and follow Christ’s call to welcome newcomers.

With your support, we mirror Christ’s love through good deeds both here at home and far away. Thank you for joining in our efforts to share God’s love and compassion with all.
